Rivers Again Leave Banks

Rains of Past Two Days Bring Up Waters—Not Expected to Reach Dangoerus Stage

At midnight Friday the water lacked about 1 foot of going over the Roscoe road and was reported to be rising slowly. Following the continued heavy downpour of rain Thursday and Friday the waters started to rise about noon Friday and for a few hours came up rapidly.

Late Friday night the Mohican and Owl Creek were reported to be out of their banks and rising rapidly.

It is not expected that the flood will again reach a dangerous stage unless there is an extremely heavy downfall. Friday night the mercury dropped sharply and it is thought that the colder weather will avert all possible chances of a repetition of last week's devastating flood.

Tuscarawas Calm

The Tuscarawas river was little more than bank full Friday afternoon and not expected to rise much although the Walhonding and its tributaries were again on the rampage. It is possible that the waters may come over the Roscoe road before starting to recede but nothing more serious is anticipated.

"Butch" a Fisherman

Friday night when the water had all been drained from the basement of the city pumping station, two big catfish weighing about 11 pounds were caught by Engineer Shearer. The funny ones had evidently found their way into the pumping station in search of warmer waters during the flood last week.

Has Plan for New Addition

J. W. Almack has suggested a plan for the relief of flood sufferers residing in the vicinity of the Clow plant. Mr. Almack owns a tract of land on the hill opposite the plant, adjoining the Porteus farm. He suggests that the property be laid out in half-acre lots and says that out of 160 lots he would donate 80 lots to people promising to build there.

Alleged Thief Is Bound Over

Tom Cowser, the negro who was arrested some time ago by Officer Alex McDonald on the charge of stealing a clock from the Clark home on South Seventh street, was arraigned before Mayor Cassingham Friday morning. After pleading not guilty to the charge he was bound over to the grand jury and returned to the county jail.

Injuries Prove Fatal to Charles Brownfield

As the result of injuries sustained when he was struck by a Wheeling freight train Thursday night, Charles W. Brownfield, aged 56 died at the City hospital Friday morning at 2 o'clock. Mr. Brownfield sustained severe injuries, a fractured skull, and badly crushed chest in addition to the loss of an arm as the result of the accident and he was unable to withstand the shock.

Charles Brownfield was born in Muskingum county and the greater part of his life was spent in Plainfield. He was a bricklayer and recently had come to Coshocton where he made his home with his brother L. J. Brownfield at East Vine street.

Commits Suicide in Aeroplane

London, April 3.—Lieutenant Perlovsky, of the Russian army, committed suicide at Warsaw on Sunday by deliberately shutting off the motor of an aeroplane in which he was flying and dropping from a height of 600 feet to the ground, according to a dispatch today.

The tragedy was believed to have been an accident until today, when a letter written just before the fatal flight, was opened. In it Lieutenant Perlovsky expressed his intentions of committing suicide in mid-air and gave as a reason that he had been the victim of many intrigues.

Workmen Are Well Cared for

Some people who have been experiencing enforced idleness as the result of the recent flood have expressed themselves as somewhat envious of the laborers on the Pennsylvania who are engaged in the work of repair along the line. It is understood that in addition to their wages the laborers are furnished with clothing, lodging, meals, and even get their stogies and packages of tobacco donated.

ON SPRING WALK

William Knight following his usual plan for enjoying his spring vacation left Coshocton Wednesday for a walk to West Carlisle and other points in the western part of the county. He expects to return home today.

BEDDING FOR SUFFERERS

The Coshocton Woman's club is making sheets and pillow cases which will be donated to the relief committee in charge of the distribution of supplies for flood sufferers.

WILL DEMONSTRATE CARE OF ORCHARDS

To promote the better care of May orchards just east of the farm orchards and to encourage city.

Seek Better Results
Inspector Wild of the state department of agriculture has taken up the work of giving demonstrations in caring and pruning fruit trees, for the benefit of proposed demonstrations. He found 250 apple trees, all strong state, Coshocton county farmers and hearty spectators last night will be given an opportunity to see a big crop of fruit last fall but it took advantage of such instruction as is hoped to show each better arrangements have been made by the department with Hugh M. Schenck ideas of fruit culture. Hay to have an expert make such which the state is engaged in demonstrations in the big W. G. Teaching the farmers.

Will Announce Dates

Mr. Hay will start work on the orchard at once, first mulching the entire area by the use of straw and manure, which will keep the ground moist throughout the summer. Later an inspector will be on the ground to superintend the spraying, trimming and pruning of the trees. The dates on which the inspector will be at the Hay orchard will be given through these columns for the benefit of all who desire to take advantage of his demonstrations.

Looking For Victims of Columbus Flood.

For days after the flood began rescuers in boats traversed the streets of the submerged sections looking for persons who might be alive. Hundreds were taken from the roofs and upper stories of houses. Doubtless bodies of others will be found when the water recedes.

Mrs. Snoots Passes Away in Zanesville

Miss Mildred Snoots was called to Zanesville yesterday morning by the critical illness of her mother. It was learned last evening that before she reached that city her mother had died. Mrs. Snoots was well known in Coshocton having resided in this city until a few years ago.

In addition to the daughter who is employed at the Coshocton Glove Company's factory in this city, the husband and one son survive.

Roads are Found to be Impassable

Drug Store in Roscoe Is Burglarized

The first meeting of the board of county commissioners, since the flood was held Friday. After considering preliminary plans for repairing the great damage done by the high waters to roads and bridges in Coshocton county, the members of the board left the city, intending to make their way to the N. E. vicinity, where the most pressing need of repair work to roads and the approach to the N. E. bridge is reported. However, the board found the road impassable at this time, owing to the rain and mud so returned to the city.

Some of the damage in the W. P. saw vicinity was inspected and the board expects to let contracts for some of the work at Nellie and Warsaw next Tuesday.

Sells to Arrive at Home Today

It is expected that Charles Sells who is recovering from a most critical illness at Bellevue hospital, Pittsburgh, will be brought home today. Mr. Sells condition is reported most encouraging.

Estimating Damage Done by the Flood

All day Friday the investigating committee composed of Jacob Richards, Henry Richardson, F. V. Dutler and Charles Reame visited different homes in the flooded district and estimated the damage done.

In spite of the driving rain the men did not stop and a large section of the flooded district was covered. In estimating the damage to different homes in the flood section Mr. Reame and Mr. Dutler are experts on furniture, rugs, etc., while Mr. Richards and Mr. Richardson are contracting carpenters. Their total estimate when completed will be presented to Governor Cox when he arrives in this city.

Drug Store in Roscoe Is Burglarized

Some time Thursday night or early Friday morning the drug store of C. J. Ferguson in Roscoe was entered and five watches and two gold pens were stolen. When the store was opened Friday morning it was discovered that a small amount of cash had been cut in the door glass and the door was locked.

Other than the pens and watches nothing was disturbed. There is a slight chance the miscreant and accomplices are endeavoring to run it off.

Donation of $25 by Rebekahs

A meeting of the Rebekah lodge last evening it was decided to give $25.00 to the flood sufferers.

Labor High in Flooded Districts

Several residents in the flooded section have complained of exorbitant prices charged by laborers for cleaning out the houses. In several cases it is claimed that the men charged 50 cents per hour for the work and one man says that he was charged $25 for having his cellar cleaned.

However, it is understood that most of the laborers are reasonable in their prices when the disagreeable character of the work is taken into consideration. To work in a cellar where there is several inches of mud and where the conditions are such that it is dangerous to health, is worth a good price and few people object to paying.

Message Delayed by Flood

A notice bringing word of the death of Ralph House, a former Coshocton county man, in the state hospital for feeble minded at Columbus, was received by Judge Judge Frank Ashman Friday. The death occurred a week ago Wednesday, March 26 and the letter was delayed by the flood.

Mr. House had been an inmate of the state institution for about 25 years. He was a brother of Elder House of the local Seventh Day Adventist church and has other relatives in this vicinity.

Trip Enjoyed by Aged Lady

Mrs. Elizabeth Swigert and Misses Pearl and Grace Leavenworth drove to this city from Chili Friday. Mrs. Swigert is eighty-nine years old and enjoyed the trip as would one half her years.

Viaduct Is Suggested

Surveyor Shaw Advances New Plan to Afford Above-flood Entrance to City from West and North—Other Ideas on Proposed Main St. Bridge

In an interview Friday County Surveyor A. H. Shaw suggested that the Randles bridge be replaced eventually. He says that while the residents of that portion of the county may manage temporarily to get on without, they need a bridge in that location and the old site should not be permanently abandoned as it would cut that portion of the county in half from Coshocton to Coshocton. Mr. Shaw says that regardless of the location of the road, whether it reaches the bridge from Pleasant Valley or Clowville a satisfactory approach could be built from the east with comparatively slight expense.

In regard to a bridge communicating with the western part of the county directly from Coshocton, Mr. Shaw says that he would counsel the erection of a viaduct between the present bridges. He says that such a viaduct could be built above the high water mark with piers sufficiently far apart to avoid damming the stream with debris in case of floods. This plan, Mr. Shaw says, would be the most feasible, most effective and the cheapest method of taking care of Coshocton traffic from the western part of the county at all times of the year. This improvement, joining the Walhonding and Tuscarawas bridges by viaduct could be made at a cost of $50,000 as compared to $200,000 the estimated cost of the proposed Main street bridge.

At Walnut street

Flooded Corn will be Useful 'Till Sun Shines

"It is an ill wind that blows nobody good" and in this case the "wind" is the rain which is delaying repair work on the railroads and in the flooded residence districts.

As long as the weather remains cloudy or as long as the rain continues all of the corn which was damaged in the flood can be kept and fed to all kinds of live stock. But, as soon as the sun comes out brightly the damp corn will ferment and be of no use except as feed to hogs and chickens.

Many farmers whose corn was in the flood have spread the grain out for the cows and horses but as soon as the sun shines for any length of time it will be of little use as feed.

"Uncle Tom" Watkins Is Summoned

Thomas Watkins, aged about 90 for forty-five years a barber in this city, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Samuel Cook in Newark Friday as the result of a long continued illness of asthma. He is survived by two sons, George and William of this city and three daughters, Mrs. Cook of Newark, Mrs. Henry Wallace of Cadiz and Mrs. William Miller of Chicago.

"I am in favor of the erection of a bridge at Walnut street," said W. W. Cantwell when consulted on the matter. "This section of the city offers a good natural approach and the river could possibly be spanned here at a somewhat more reasonable cost than at Main street. A beautiful drive could easily be constructed along the Muskingum on the west side of the river above the high waters that were continually destroying the former river road." "The erection of a Main street bridge would meet with my approval," said C. K. Clemens when asked for his opinion in the matter. "For several years Coshocton has considered this proposition and it seems to me to be the most feasible and satisfactory solution of the problem. Such a bridge would practically do away with the present isolation of the western part of the county at the time of floods. The present road above the canal on the west side of the river could readily be improved and utilized for the traffic formerly passing over the river road while the town bridge would meet practically all the needs of the old Randles bridge with none of its disadvantages at the time of floods."

"I think that the proposition to

Southern Kansas Covered by Snow

Coshocton relatives of Lewis Glover have received a letter from him stating that portions of southern Kansas are covered with two feet of snow. "Otherwise," Mr. Glover says, "Kansas continues to be the 'garden spot of the earth,' untroubled by cyclones or floods."

Charles Huff, of Hill Creek, was in Coshocton Friday.

The Rains Again Delay First Train's Arrival

Although the rains again postponed the arrival of the first train from the north via the W. & L. E. Friday, it was announced by Agent E. E. Eckert last night that a passenger train would be in at noon today. This train will return to the north at the regularly scheduled time this afternoon and the evening train is also expected in on schedule time. Both these trains will lay over in the local yards and the regular service on the W. & L. E. will be maintained with the exception of between this city and Zanesville. In addition to the passenger service the W. & L. E. will resume its regular express and freight service. The express and freight train will again in shape for traffic and work will at once be started towards repairing the road between this city and Zanesville. The passenger station and round house at Zanesville are gone but the tracks were little damaged as far north as Dresden. In fact, the C. & M. V. is using the W. & L. E. tracks as far south as Ellis. A steam shovel and a big repair crew has been sent from Brewster to Dresden by way of Columbus and will start work at that point, from where the outfit will proceed towards Coshocton.

The Flying Man

by Harry Irving Greene

"Halt," he commanded fiercely. March paused. What insane fear or hatred had suddenly taken possession of the other's twisted mind he had no idea, therefore he must question him quietly, ascertain, and then strive to reason with him. He eyed him steadily. "Well, what is it?" he demanded. "I am going alone. You must remain behind."

March slowly shook his head. "No, you must not say that. I may be of assistance to you, and is this not a matter for both of us as men?" The question seemed to infuriate the other beyond self control.

"For both of us!" he fairly yelled. "No, it is a matter for me alone—for me who loves her in a way that such as you can no more conceive than you can conceive of pain and agony and weeks of sleepless wretchedness passed in calling aloud to her through the endless hours of torturing nights. And always you stood between us with your silly attentions and school-boy declarations of puppy love. Yet, what did it gain you? Nothing but refusal upon refusal. She loves you not at all and you shall not accompany me up the path which I learned at the risk of my own life for she is mine, promised to me by betrothal—my affianced wife. If you go to her find a way of your own, but this way is mine and mine alone."

"Clay," said March sternly as he took a forward step with chin thrust out, his heart sinking nevertheless at the other's words, "I do not believe you. She never promised to marry you." In an instant the madman had whipped out his pistol and leveled it at his follower's head.

"Fool, for the last time stand back." Cold as death March faced him. "You are losing your head. If you loved her as you pretend—if you were engaged to her as you say, you would welcome my assistance. If we rescue her the honor shall be yours and if she confirms your assertion I will never cross your path again. But until then I yield not an inch in my right to go to her. If you know a way up that cliff I am going up it also, with your permission if you will grant it, without it if you deny me. The knowledge of certain death would not prevent me from going to the last step I am able to take." He started forward again with his eyes fixed steadily upon the one before him, seeking to get his hands upon him, disarm him and talk him into a semblance of reason, but he had underestimated the desperation of the insane mind that lay behind the leveled weapon. From head to foot Tolleriver quivered like a wind-thrashed reed.

"Then if you will not listen to me you shall die like the fool you have always been." Heavily the weapon spoke, and Alan reeling threw up his hands and came crashing down upon the rocks, while the other crouching like a cat over its felled prey watched him as intently. But no sound came from the fallen one, no movement, and thrusting his revolver back into his pocket he went picking his way over the jumbled mass, his lips quivering and face working as his glowing eyes sought the dizzy way up which he had pulled himself in that desperate hunt of three years before.

CHAPTER XII.

The Ascent.

Rising for three hundred feet as straight up as the side of one of the loftiest skyscrapers built by man the cliffs arose, split from the mountain top by the wedges of the lightnings and guarding the summit by walls of almost absolute perpendicularity. In that hunt of the past he had seen a steep upon the summit, and therefore knew that there must be a trail leading to the top despite the fact that it was classed as inaccessible to human foot. Determined, therefore, that he should be the first human to trod its top, for miles he had worked his way about it with keenly searching eyes as he sought for the place where the first step must be made if he would attempt the ascent, found it at last, desperate and scanty to the extreme yet barely possible to one of much activity and steadiness. And with little regard for probable consequences he had undertaken it. It had been a supreme test of nerves and poise, but he had conquered it at last, reached the desolate, boulder haunted plateau and killed his sheep, and then had sat for hours upon the sheer edge as he nerved himself for what seemed a descent impossible to human being except at the expense of life or splintered bones. Yet having come up he must go down, and down he eventually and safely arrived—though great good fortune attended him—and at last had stood beside the broken body of his kill which he had been obliged to tumble bodily from the height. That awful ascent and descent had ever since haunted him as an evil dream, a thing not to be attempted again for all the wealth of the world, but now with the woman he loved borne there in the loathsome embrace of that arch enemy of all mankind he sought for the suicidal path again with straining eagerness. Of March lying inert back there upon the rocks where his bullet had felled him he gave scarcely a thought. Obsessed by the idea that he alone could save the woman he sought, he would have regarded less anything, man or beast, that he imagined might in any way impede his progress.

Before him there lay a narrow shelf leading upward for a score of feet, broken, insecure and seeming to end in nothing but the blank wall itself, but he recognized it instantly and stepped upon it. Arms extended, flailing himself against the rock as a beach cliffs, he felt his way upward with infinite caution, his fingers gripping each tiny crevice with the tenacity of the tentacles of a squid. He reached the end of the narrow shelf and there balanced precariously upon six inches of overhanging, cast his glance cautiously upward and about. Several feet to the right was another foothold equally insecure, but leading upward again, and with the care with which one treads a taut wire he placed his foot upon it, found a shallow finger hold in the cliff and raised himself. For fifty feet more he climbed as a fly scales a wall, periled his life upon the two-inch support of a jutting point, mounted again with the superhuman cunning and strength of the insane and at the end of a half hour's well nigh miraculous effort found for the first time during the ascent a shelf large enough to rest upon. He was half way up now, and with a hundred and fifty feet of beetling cliff above and as much empty space below he sat down for a moment's heavy breathing.

CARL RIGGS A "PAUL REVERE" AT ZANESVILLE

Carl Riggs, a linotype operator on The Times Recorder, and living on the Terrace, arrived home Wednesday morning just in time, as the rising waters made it necessary for him to arouse the slumbering residents of that section on his way. He realized the danger that was present and after securing a boat lent his tireless energy to rescuing the people whose houses were already partly submerged. He tells of hair-breadth escapes and states that none but an eye-witness can appreciate the horror of it all or fully realize the feelings of the panic-stricken populace. Carl is now a member of the Terrace Red Cross brigade and says "30" is not in yet.—Zanesville Times Recorder.

Mr. Riggs is a former well known Coshocton resident, a son of S. O. Riggs, who at present resides in Newark.

RELIEF FUNDS WOULD RESTORE HOMES OF POOR

Columbus, April 4.—Relief funds of the state government, of the state relief commission and of the Red Cross Society will be used "to restore the homes of the poor," as Governor Cox expressed it. The San Francisco method of apportioning the aid rendered by the card index system, will be followed. This was determined definitely by conference yesterday between Governor Cox and Red Cross officials in advance of the meeting, to be held at 10 o'clock this morning of the state relief commission.

"We will try to give those who have lost practically everything by the flood such assistance as will enable them to go to work again and get on their feet," said Governor Cox. "If a home needs a stove or simple articles of furniture, we will try to provide them. If there are women expecting maternity we will care for them."

THREE GASKETS COVER REMAINS OF J. P. MORGAN

Rome, April 4.—The body of the late J. Pierpont Morgan, after it had been embalmed and dressed was Tuesday enclosed in a walnut coffin, lined with white brocade. This was then placed in a leaden casket and finally in a third casket of heavy walnut with gold and silver fittings.

The United States ambassador has offered to hold a funeral service at the embassy, in pursuance of instructions received from Secretary of State Bryan.

No definite arrangements have yet been made for the transportation of the body to America, but it is understood that accommodation has been offered on board the Kocaj Albert, leaving Naples, April 4.

Queen Esther Meeting

The Queen Esther society of Grace church met with Miss Della Smith at her home on Locust street last evening.

"Mormonism" was the subject studied and after the routine business the hostess served dainty refreshments.

W. A. H. B. Meeting

The W. A. H. B. club met at the T. J. Hanley home last evening and knotted a quilt for the flood sufferers. Those present were: Misses Margaret Agnew, Leila Miller, Jessie Pope, Ann Anderson, Mary Selby and the Misses Delsie and Veronica Hanley. This evening the same club will meet with Miss Mary Selby on Sixth street and knot another comfort.

Scarcity in Early Vegetables

Cleveland, Ohio, April 3.—

Cleveland is facing a famine of fruit and early vegetable products, as a result of the flood condition in the Ohio Valley. Prices are soaring and the outlook for relief for at least a week and a probably longer period is slight.

The threatened famine in fresh meats, however, which had become acute, is believed to be past.

Prices were considerably higher than normal Tuesday, but provision men say the market is beginning to brighten.

"I don't look for a famine in fresh meats," said A. S. Pickering, Central Market meat dealer, and for 13 years Secretary of the Retail Butchers' Protective Association. "Prices are again, many success of the meetings, exceeded the expectations of the promoters, and it is hoped that the increasing manifest interest on the part of the public, may lead to a resumption of the meetings at a later date. In the meantime the same welcome that greeted you at the Pastime will be extended at the Presbyterian church, and the same Gospel message from the same preacher will do you the same good. You are cordially invited."

Tells Thrilling Story of Cyclone

Probably the most interesting and authentic news concerning the cyclone which swept Nebraska on Easter Sunday has reached this city with the arrival of Mr. Marshall who was called to Coshocton by the illness of his father, Owen Marshall of East Main street.

Mr. Marshall's home is in Greenwood, Neb., but a short distance from Lincoln. He says that the cyclone started near the Christian College at Bethany, Neb., the home of Rev. A. L. Ogden who conducted the evangelistic services during the past winter at the Coshocton Church of Christ. Mr. Marshall says that from his home in Greenwood he could plainly see the cloud moving eastward. Also that while the path of the storm was within two miles of his home, his farm was not damaged but owing to the irregular path of the cloud it was impossible to tell just where it was.

Mr. Marshall has witnessed a number of cyclones and his years of residence on the prairies has made him familiar with the freaks of tornadoes. He says that the Easter Sunday storm was exciting the night relief trains from thirty three states in one as more fortunate cities in Nebraska smaller and less destructive tornadoes together with the cities of Iowa and even Denver, Colo., hastened to the stricken city with supplies, physicians and nurses to care for the injured. It is also a noteworthy fact that when the work of rescue and relief was accomplished those who had proffered their services returned home with no thought of remuneration. A fund of $153,000 was raised in Nebraska alone for the relief and care of the sufferers.

Some idea of the extent of the damage and also of the difficulties to be surmounted in the rebuilding of the stricken city is to be gained from the fact that the damage in Omaha will total at least $10,000,000 while only $500,000 of this amount is provided for in tornado insurance.

Mr. Marshall has a few pictures illustrating graphically the extent of the damage done near his home in Greenwood, Neb. In some instances the storm took almost a backward course leaving destruction in its path in places where it was at first thought the cloud had passed and the districts were safe. One picture shown represents a handsome farm house only a portion of which is left standing. The back of the house and the roof were completely blown off, every window in the house was blown out and every vestige of furniture was blown from the house, even from the rooms where the walls stood intact.

By a freak of the cyclone which struck Omaha a waste basket belonging to an Omaha woman was found, right side up with letters filled with discarded letters and post cards in a yard in Pomeroy, Iowa, 170 miles from the former city.

Mr. Marshall tells, in a most interesting way, of the widespread devastation of the tornado in his home state. He also saw much of the destructive work of the floods in his journey across Illinois, Indiana and Ohio on his way to his father's home in the city. He reached Coshocton Thursday after a difficult trip including a walk in the rain from Trine, Ind., to Coshocton by way of the "overland"—the only possible approach to Coshocton from down the Muskingum valley at present.

Mr. and Mrs. George Latz and Mrs. Jesse Robinson of Coshocton were in this city Friday.

Mr. Marshall says that Omaha was unusually fortunate in the organization of her relief work. The proximity of two regular army posts, Fort Omaha on the north and Fort Crook on the south, made it possible to place the city under martial law almost immediately following the disaster. The storm had spent its force by 6:30 p. m. and within two that the storm path aggregated a distance of 90 miles probably the ground and maintained order spending its greatest force in the north and west.

Home and Relatives May be Gone; He Don't Worry

Newark, O., April 4—A tall, lanky individual stalked in to the Seiler hotel last evening, grip in hand, and asked for lodging. "Flood sufferer?" inquired another guest of the house. "Nix," said the lanky one. "But I'm trying to be one. The fact is I am trying to get to Coshoctonville, my home. They tell me it is under water, but I love the old town just the same. I have been down in Chattanooga, Tenn., and heard there was a flood over home, and that it was the worst one ever visited the place, and I am afraid the folks are all washed out of home. When I reached Cincinnati on the way up last Wednesday they told me I could not get any farther than Cinney because of the high waters. I walked around the city, though, and by a long circuitous route managed to get to Columbus. Then I couldn't get out of there, so I just walked around and finally managed to get to this city, and now the next leg of the journey is to reach Zanesville, and then on to Coshoctonville, but they tell me it is here below Zanesville."

"When do you expect to get home," inquired the other guest. "Well, just so I get there by the Fourth of July. I will be satisfied. You don't suppose I am in any hurry do you? My mother and father and two sisters and brother may all be drowned, and the house may be swept away and everything we had in the world may be washed down the river, but that isn't worrying me much. If I find out the true situation by next Independence day that will be time enough. You see I am not one of those excitable persons who worries about things. So far as my name is concerned that don't make any difference either. I don't want to be written up in the papers. I am just one of the folks who is trying to get back home. So long, fellows." And he walked out to try to catch a train.

CLAIMS ARE FILED

The statement of claims in the matter of the assignment of Robert and Charles Binning was filed in probate court Friday by C. A. Lamberson, assignee. The claims total of $2,080.21.

MOVING NOTE

Mrs. William Kitchens is moving her family and household furnishings to Chillicothe where she will reside in the future.

BIRTH NOTE

An eleven pound girl arrived at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Freund Friday afternoon.

RID YOUR FEET OF SORE CORNS

Quite easy now to extract any kind of a corn—just apply Putnam's Corn Extractor—it works wonders, stops the pain quickly, the thick tissue is softened, and healing goes to the heart of the corn. In a few hours the hard core is loosened and separated from the toe. Out comes the corn. Toe is left smooth—not a mark left. Use only Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor, recommended by druggist and sold in 25c bottles by C. E. Anderson.

Can On Long Hatpins.

Berlin, April 3.—Women who persist in wearing pointed hatpins without protectors on them will be subject to a fine after April 15. After having failed to persuade the women to discard the sharp hatpins, Berlin's police president announces that after the 15th transgressors will be fined up to $15 for each offense, and if they do not pay they will be imprisoned.

Dayton Will Seek Loan.

Dayton, O., April 3.—Plans are being drafted by the men of Dayton who will take the lead in the reconstruction of the city, by which the federal government will be asked for a loan of from $20,000,000 to $40,000,000 to assist the flood-stricken city to get back on its feet.

Only One Body Missing.

Delaware, O., April 3.—A shoe extending from the mud beside the river led to an investigation which re-sulted in the recovery of the body of Mrs.
Grover Slosser, 22, the seventeenth to be found. Only the body of Miss Hazel Dunlap has not yet been recovered.

RELIEF EXPERTS RUSH TO SCENE

Serious Trouble Expected in the Lower Ohio Valley.

ARMY MEN TO FIGHT FLOOD

Plans Perfected to Cope With the Situation as the Crest Nears the Mississippi River — Provisions and Tents Forwarded to Threatened Points in Kentucky, Missouri and Other States.

Washington, April 3.—The Ohio flood having reached its crest at Cincinnati and started to recede, Major Normoye, in charge of the relief operations at that post, made further plans to cope with the situation as the crest moves into the lower Ohio Valley to the Mississippi.
"We are looking for trouble in the lower Ohio valley," said Major Normoye, in a report received by Major General Wood, chief of staff of the army, who returned with Secretary Garrison from a trip into the flood area.

In order to keep relief measures ahead of the flood, Major Normoye said he had ordered provisions, tents and army flood relief experts into Carruthersville, Charres and New Madrid, Mo.; Hickman, Columbus and Wickliffe, Ky.; Dyersburg and Tintonville, Tenn.; Helena, Ark., as well as Memphis.

"Major Logan as advance scout," Major Normoye's report added "will get all possible information and report throw officers and noncommis-sioned officers where they can do the best work in anticipation of trouble, which will soon come throughout the valley."

CORPORATIONS FOREMOST IN RELIEF WORK

Columbus, O., April 4.—In times of flood and fire and other disaster public service corporations have souls. Every public official, from Governor Cox down to the last private in the National Guard, stands ready to testify to this fact, now that the week of horrors is over.

Without their hearty, unstinted and unselfish devotion in the time of storm and stress it is hard to say what the efforts of the rescuer would have come to. The spirit of co-operation still continues.

Today the Pennsylvania Railroad officials, who have been foremost in relief work, called Governor Cox and asked if they could take from a gravel bank along their lines owned by the state, sufficient material to close a "washout" gap. "Go to it," was the quick response. "Take all you want."

Before the day was over the Chief Executive learned that the company, hearing messages going over its wires to military relief headquarters asking for coal at Dresden and Piqua, issued orders to forward the fuel as fast as possible without expense to either the city or state.

Epidemic of Typhoid
Not Feared

Washington, D. C., April 3.—While health conditions seem very satisfactory in the flooded districts at the present time, there is, of course, danger of typhoid fever outbreak, which may not come for several weeks, said Surgeon General Blane, of the public health commission, who returned to Washington today from Ohio and Indiana.

"Generally speaking," said Mr. Blane, "I am not apprehensive of any serious results. Street cleaning and sanitation are proceeding satisfactorily and precaution is being taken against typhoid fever."

Live to be 100

Millions Die of Kidney disease; ten of thousands have it right now and never suspect it.

The surest and wisest plan to always keep the kidneys healthy and free from poisonous matter that leads to Bright's disease, dropsy and other serious diseases is to take a few doses of Thompson's Barosina every three months.

It is a harmless vegetable remedy put up in liquid form, is quickly assimilated and gets to the sick kidneys at once. If your kidneys are weak, inflamed or clogged up, Thompson's Barosina will put them in splendid shape again. If they are not diseased, this greatest of all kidney remedies will tone up your system anyway.

Page & Lorenz sell Thompson's Barosina for 50 cts. and $1 a bottle on money back plan. It never fails to cure backache, sideache, sharp shooting pains and all kidney, liver or bladder disease. In conjunction with Barosina always take Thompson's Dandelion and Mandrake Pills (25 cents), when constipation is present. Thompson Medical Co., Titusville, Pa.

Funeral Two Victims of Flood Today

The funeral services over the remains of Mrs. Edward Hawley and her little child who were drowned in the flood near Clowville Tuesday night, March 25, will be held from the home of her sister, Mrs. Liddle in Pleasant Valley, this afternoon at two o'clock. Rev. Beck will have charge of the services and interment will be made in the South Lawn cemetery.

BIG ORCHESTRON
NOW INSTALLED

Without a doubt Coshocton has never seen or heard such a beautiful Orchestron as was installed last night in George Pentel's confectionery shop at 409 Main street by the Compton-Price Piano Co.

It was the object of admiration by the crowds which filled the store and will undoubtedly attract unusual attention from the throngs of shoppers tonight.

The big Orchestron was made in Freiburg, Germany and rivals the artistic music of a ten-piece human orchestra. The large seven-inch stained glass windows show an attractive moving waterfalls and old mill by moonlight. Music-lovers who desire a real treat should not fail to drop in and hear it play.

Democrats Sweep City of Chicago

Chicago, April 3.—Democrats swept the city in Tuesday's municipal election, returning 22 Aldermen and the Superior Court Judge, City Clerk and City Treasurer. The proposed bond issue of $2,880,000 urged by the Harrison faction of the Democratic party, carried by a small margin.

Republicans elected 11 Aldermen, Progressives 1 and Independents 1. The Progressives had candidates in every ward, but failed to show strength, being outvoted by the Republicans by nearly 3 to 1 throughout the city.

The Socialist vote was consistently scattered through all the ward, and was not far below the Progressive total.

Alderman Michael Kenma, known as "Hinky Dink," the fellow Councilman of "Bathhouse"

John Coughlin for the First Ward, was returned as usual by an impressive total, getting 4,358 votes to the Progressives' 711 and the Socialists, 401. He had no Republican opposition.

The single independent candidate to be elected is Alderman Charles E. Merriam, a professor at the University of Chicago, and until recently a Progressive leader.

BLOODPOISONING
PROVES FATAL

Charles McMillen, aged 20, died Thursday night, March 27 at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Diver McMillen of New Guilford as the result of blood poisoning following an acute illness of liver trouble from which he had been suffering for some time previous to his death. Funeral services were held Saturday last and interment took place in the West Carlisle cemetery.
